

Senior US officials have daily job of auditing Israeli aid to Gaza

written by Arsen Ostrovsky | 23.10.2024

Arsen Ostrovsky on U.S. Secretary Blinken's recent visit to the region and criticism of the humanitarian aid going into Gaza, saying: If Washington really wants to help the situation in Gaza, it should "force Qatar and Turkey to pressure Hamas into accepting the U.S.-brokered deal and release of the hostages," rather than "putting more pressure on Israel, who are already doing everything we can, while being forced to fight a seven-front war against Iran.

Published in JNS, October 23, 2024.

